

Ecovisions

September 12 – October 25, 2014

A group exhibition of over fifty artists, Ecovisions highlights the local and global environmental issues we are facing today. McLean County Arts Center asked their affiliated artists to create artwork that focuses on the problems surrounding our resources, land, water, air, animal or plant life, the solutions we bring to fruition, or the unattainable utopian ideal. Over fifty artists worked in various media to express their respect, discontent, or wonder of an aspect of our ecology. Through photography, painting, sculpture, and more, the exhibition aims to illustrate the varied and complex perspectives of the Earth's endurance.

This exhibition was generously sponsored by

Judie Bey & Gary Hoover, Gay Dolan, Rhea Edge, Fine and Performing Arts Chair at Eureka College, Linda Willis Fisher & Robert Fisher, Furnace Urbini Glass Works, and Sue Wang

Listen to WGLT's Laura Kennedy interview artist Tyler Lotz and curator Claire Hedden